

Overpayment Waiver Frequently Asked Questions

Q: Who is eligible for the overpayment waiver?

A: You are eligible for a waiver if you had an overpayment that: (a) was made without your fault; (b) recovery would be contrary to equity and good conscience; and (c) the overpayment occurred in a claim filed between January 27, 2020 and December 31, 2020.

Q: If I filed a claim before December 31, 2020, and received notification of the overpayment after December 31, 2020 am I eligible?

A: Yes.

Q: If I filed a claim after December 31, 2020, and received a notification of overpayment, am I eligible?

A: No

Q: What do I need to do to be considered for a waiver?

A: You will receive a letter of determination from the Office of Unemployment Insurance stating the overpayment amount and notifying you of your opportunity to request a waiver. The letter will give you the steps you can take to be considered.

Q: How much time do I have to be considered for the overpayment waiver?

A: You have thirty (30) days from the date the most recent waiver notification letter was mailed.

Q: Do I have to meet both standards in the waiver request to be eligible for the waiver?

A: Yes

Note: Failing to provide relevant information or knowingly making a false statement on the waiver affidavit regarding your benefits will subject you to disqualification. Disqualification are subject to benefits up to a maximum of 12 months, liability for overpayment of all benefits received plus interest and penalties, and possible criminal prosecution by state and/or federal officials.

Q: What can I do if my request for a waiver is denied?

A: You may appeal. The process to appeal the decision will be included on the most recent waiver determination letter. This is a new process if you have appealed an overpayment for this particular claim.

Updated: 4:17 PM 9/24/2021